

To whom it may concern,

My name is Carl Malmros and I teach history, social studies and world theology at the upper secondary level school Nacka Enskilda Gymnasium. This school combines the preparation for higher level education as well as the students' desire to evolve in whatever sport they enjoy, whether it be recreationally or in an aim to make it their career.

Therefore it is with great joy that I have been given the opportunity to write a few words about Freja Norinder, as part of her hopes to take part in the United States' higher educational system. During the fall of 2021 and spring of 2022 I taught Freja in history and during the last two semesters I have had the privilege of supervising and examining her final thesis paper. In both of these courses Freja statuated great grit and a high level of determination in taking part of the curriculum. This combined with the fact that she already plays football (soccer) on a high level outside of school is also a testament to her character, and why I find her well suited for whatever challenge she decides to take on.

I would also like to emphasize Freja's creativity and the fact that she is not afraid to go her own way in finding solutions to academic challenges. In her final thesis she showed curiosity and a great deal of academic propriety investigating a phenomena known as the "Pink tax" (the occurrence of price differences between products where the only difference is whether they're marketed towards male or female consumers). On top of this Freja is also a down to earth person and has a mature sense of assessing her own abilities. Her social abilities seem to be a good contribution to whatever context she is introduced to. These last two years leave no hesitation to say that Freja is a great contribution to any classroom environment, and from what I've heard from both herself and her classmates, team and social context as well. Given the nature of the school she is currently graduating from I also find Freja to be a well suited recipient of a scholarship because of the fact that she is used to combining both sports and education on a high academic level.

I therefore gladly wish to recommend her as a scholarship receiver as part of her strive to take part in the United States' higher educational system. Freja is well equipped to use this opportunity as a way to further develop her educational merits as well as her joy for, and ambitions in football.

Best regards,
